CALL FOR PAPERS

THE ARAB-TURKISH CONGRESS OF SOCIAL SCIENCES (ATCOSS-2010)

"Culture and Middle Eastern Studies"

10-12 December, 2010. Ankara, Turkey

The congress aims to bring together scholars of the Middle East to exchange ideas and findings concerning the mutual problems of the region, and swap experiences about scientific methods and approaches within Middle Eastern studies. This will be an excellent opportunity to explore the varied intellectual trends across scholarly boundaries. Among the growing trends, we will focus on the cultural variables in understanding political, economic, social, and historical issues. Such trends are most important for our region since culture is essential for attaining homogeneity and unity in the region while recognizing its diversity. ATCOSS 2010 aims to reconsider cultural factors in relation to other factors in attempting to build new untraditional perspectives and approaches for Middle Eastern studies. The Congress invites the researchers from all fields and branches of social sciences to participate with papers in Arabic, Turkish or English. We suggest the following themes (though not limited to):

International relations and issues.
Society and the state
Pedagogical theories and systems
Comparative religion studies
Acculturation and dialogue of civilizations
Cross-cultures comparisons
Comparative history

Public policy
Political and economic development
Media and virtual reality studies
Ethics of politics and economic practice
Innovation in literature and arts theory
Cities and urban transformations
Middle Eastern relations
